The gratifying re-orders for this book have confirmed our belief that it will be used not only as a guide book, and gift book, but as a standard work on an important subject for public and private libraries.

SECOND EDITION IN PREPARATION

THE MAKING OF PERSONALITY

By Bliss Carman

Boxed, $1.50

Because he has written in his fascinating way on a subject of vital interest to everyone, Bliss Carman's new volume of essays is rivalling in general attention and demand the most popular work of fiction. "He has caught the breezy spirit of Robert Louis Stevenson," says CURRENT LITERATURE.

Referring to L. M. Montgomery's

the trade will read with interest the following from a letter to the publishers from one of the best known buyers and one of the most discriminating judges of books in the country.

"My daughter has read ANNE OF GREEN GABLES. If this reader's enthusiasm is any criterion—and by the way she reads almost all the best books of this class—you certainly have a winner."

Yours very truly,

T. EDWARD JONES.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish shortly another story by René Bazin, entitled "Redemption," the background of which is Nantes.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just received the manuscript of Rosa Nouchette Carey's annual novel, which they will bring out in September. It will be entitled "The Sunny Side of the Hill," and will deal with English country life.

DUFFIELD & Co. have in preparation "The Letters of Edward Lear," the famous author of "The Book of Nonsense," whose principal work was that of a landscape painter. The volume is to be edited by Lady Strachey, and will contain Lear's letters descriptive of his journeys as a painter to Corfu, Mount Athos and Albania.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have in preparation a new and cheaper edition, in three volumes, of the Home Library of Law, by Albert S. Bolles. The new edition will be entitled Everyman's Library of Law and will be arranged under three general titles—"The Ownership and Use of Land," "The Ownership and Use of Personal Property," and "The Pledging of Personal Property and Corporations, Domestic Relations and Wrongs." The work is intended for the lay reader seeking advice in legal matters.

B. W. DODGE & Co. have in preparation for the fall Upton Sinclair's new novel, "The Moneychangers." Few readers of "The Metropolis" seem to have suspected that that book was merely an introduction to a series, a trilogy in fact, which is intended to be a presentation of the contemporary business and social life of New York City. "The Moneychangers" carries forward the characters of "The Metropolis" in the development of the main story of the trilogy, a story reaching its climax in the real history of the panic of 1907.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish shortly a work on "Servia and the Servians," by Chedo Mijatovich, a vivid account of the religious and social life, the institutions and the traditions of the Servian folk—that interesting and quaint people of which comparatively little is known to the outside world. At the time of the assassination of King Alexander, in 1902, M. Mijatovich was Servian Minister at the Court of St. James. On all Servian affairs he is a recognized authority, and there are few who are as competent as he to tell the story of his countrymen.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY will publish on July 25 "The Motor Rivals," by Percy Megargel and Grace S. Mason, a story of the briskest nature in which love enters as a motive for increased rivalry between two opposed automobile designers who love Betty, the charming daughter of a millionaire manufacturer. Vannucinni, a dashing Italian, has the apparent advantage in both the car and the lady's affections, but Jerry Fleming, an American, stakes everything on the virtues of his own machines, and proposes a race from New York to Portland, Oregon. The story of this race between Vannucinni and Fleming for the hand of Betty is one of the delightful surprises of the year. It is a record, too, of an actual trip, and will appeal to motorists and idealists, and to all who love a good yarn.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. 48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Jim Burwick stole away from home on a Sunday in May when he was not yet eighteen. He went to Lafayette, Indiana, and became a railroad man. After leading a reckless life for some time he married, and by the efforts of a young sewing girl who boarded with his wife he came again under the influence of the Christian church. He mixed with men of every class and was adviser, counsellor and friend to all.

Carey, Rosa Nouchette. Nellie's memories. N. Y., Hurst & Co., 1908. 546 p. 12°, (Home ser.) cl., 50 c.

Chekhov, Anton Pavlovich. The cherry garden: a comedy in four acts; tr. from the original Russian by Max S. Mandell, with an introd. by the translator. [New Haven, Ct., Yale Courant, 1908.] c. 7-72 p. fold. facsim., O. cl., 75 c.; pap., 40 c.

The author was born in South Russia, January 17, 1860. He has produced a number of works, both plays and stories. While in Russia he is considered one of the greatest writers, he is little known in English-speaking countries. This is one of his first plays to be translated. It is a study of character, the action transpiring on an extensive estate in an outlying district in the vicinity of Moscow.

Chilcott, Langdon S. Templar tactics and manual. Bangor, Me., Langdon S. Chilcott, [1908.] 143 p. il. diagrs., D. leath., $1.50.

This work will be especially useful for officers of Commanderies, for it is concise, comprehensive and clean, and will aid officers in giving instructions to Sir Knights, both in the asylum and on parade, or anywhere that they appear in a body. The evolutions are based on the system of turns employed in modern drill regulations, and the system by evolutions by wheels is included. Complete instruction is given in the use of the sword, explanations of honors and salutes, funeral ceremonies, etc.

Cutting, Mrs. Mary Stewart Doubleday. The wayfarers; il. by Alice Barber Stephens. N. Y., McClure Co., 1908. c. 3-374 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The story of Alexander Justin, a business man of ideal character, who has plodded along in a situation for seven years, working far beyond his strength and his small compensation for the wife and children he fondly loves. With the opening of the story a chance comes to him for independence and perhaps wealth. He is put in charge of a business, but finds himself in the hands of men whose methods are utterly repugnant to him. He refuses to follow their orders and the result is almost destruction to him, financially and physically. Almost on the verge of suicide, he is unexpectedly helped from a source where his honesty has found appreciation.

Daniels, Fred Hamilton. The furnishing of a modest home. Worcester, Mass., Davis Press, 1908. c. 114 p. il. pls. plans, O. cl., $1.

Points out the mischief now done by indiscriminate wedding gifts, which prevent a harmonious plan of furnishing in accordance with the means and tastes of the young home-makers. The director of drawing in the public schools of Springfield, Mass., gave a series of lectures on house furnishing, in which this book had its beginning. He wishes homes to combine "the simplicity of Colonial times, the creature comforts of the 19th century, and the intellectual æsthetic and spiritual atmosphere of the 20th century."

Davis, C. H: Stanley, M.D. Consumption: its prevention and cure without medicine; with chapters on sanitation and prevention of other diseases. 2d ed. N. Y., E. B. Treat & Co., 1908. 217 p. 12°, cl., $1.

Death in the kiss: a treatise on innocent infection, by a New York physician. N. Y., Broadway Publishing Co., 1908. c. 12 p. D. pap., 25 c.

Deals with the terrible diseases which can be acquired from the simple act of kissing. The writer is a New York specialist who prefers to remain incognito.

Details of machine tool design. N. Y., Industrial Press, 1908. c. 40 p. diagrs., 8°, (Machinery's reference ser.) pap., 25 c.

The writer of the diary is a Copenhagen girl, the daughter of a flower painter and of Professor Holger Hagens. Her diary was a Christmas present from her mother, and she starts it with the intention of writing all her thoughts in it and recording all the events of her life, whether good or bad. The time covered is only a year, but it is rich in incidents. She becomes betrothed to a good man, but not satisfied with this she cultivates the admiration of an actor and gets into rather deep water. Said to be a translation from the Danish.

The first edition of "American insects" was published in 1904. In this new and revised edition a detailed analytical table of contents has been substituted for the simple list of chapter titles used in the first edition and an additional chapter on the subject of insect behavior and psychology has been added. While descriptive accounts of the reflexes and instincts of insects are to be found on almost every page of the book—insect instinct is indeed one of the primary subjects of the book—the author has believed that a special discussion and attempt at analysis of the springs and control of insect behavior would be of interest to the reader.

A French reporter is the central figure in a mysterious murder case. He successfully plays the amateur detective, solving with extraordinary cleverness the puzzling details of the seeming murder of a young French woman, who is found locked in her room in a dying condition, having been shot and brutally beaten. She lives in summer in an isolated pavilion next to the laboratory of her father, a celebrated scientist, whose work she takes part in. As she was carefully locked in her room at night the question is how did the murderer reach her and how did he escape, as the doors and windows all appear intact.

The mad scientist discovers new powers of Nature, and electrifies the world by his weird achievements—making houses and battleships to sail through the air; causing a man to grow taller and shorter; burning up a lake full of water; stopping all the machinery in a city for an hour—doing a hundred and one mad pranks that upset the public and finally embarking on a career of crime and piracy. The cypher is presented in fifty words. One person may send in several solutions. The astonishing possibilities of modern science are the theme of this imaginative work.

Friday evenings in Harry Miner's Bowery Theatre, N. Y. City, were given over to amateur performances. One Friday night in October, 1903, a very bad amateur became a bore with his "near tenor" voice. Tom Miner deftly hooked him off the stage unseen by most of the audience. Later in the evening a gallery boy, again bored, shouted "Get the hook." The expression has been translated in several languages and is used now in all kinds of business transactions to signify that one of the parties has "had enough."

Morris, Clara. The new "East Lynne": an entirely new and original novel. [N. Y., C. H. Doscher & Co., 1908.] c. 5-326 p. front. D. cl., *$1 net.

"East Lynne" was one of the plays that Clara Morris, the well-known actress and novelist, made a reputation in. Her present story, "The new East Lynne," follows broadly the plot of the former novel. It is the story of a beautiful and good woman who marries a physician. In his home she finds a young ward. The doctor speaks of her as a child, but the wife quickly discovers that Olive Marr is passionately in love with her husband. In course of time she steals the wife's love. A man without a conscience who loves Mrs. Keith drugs her and abducts her. She is reported dead and the lovers marry. Five years later the real Mrs. Keith comes to her old home as governess to her two children, so disfigured however that she believes no one knows her. How the situation ends is left to the reader.

The basis of the plot is a mysterious robbery of the Bank of England. The detectives for a year are unable to find a clue to the money. The scene is then transferred to Monastery Farm in western New York. A young Englishman employed there is suspected. How his feelings are worked upon and he is made to repent and makes restitution, with the capture of another young fellow who was in the plot to rob the bank, is the story.

New Schaff-Herzog encyclopedia of religious knowledge; embracing biblical, historical, doctrinal and practical theology, and biblical, theological and ecclesiastical biography, from the earliest times to the present day; based on the 3d ed. of the Realencyklopädie [für protestantische theologie und kirche] by Johann Jakob Herzog; ed. by Albert Hauck and now in course of publication; prepared by more than 600 scholars and specialists under the supervision of S: Macauley Jackson, D.D., editor-in-chief, C: Colebrook Sherman and G: W: Gilmore. Complete in 12 v. v. 1, Aachen-Basilians. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1908. c. 500 p. Q. cl., $5.

This is a reconstruction of the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia of religious knowledge published in 3 v. in 1882-1884 and revised and published with new material added in 4 v. in 1886. It follows the same general plan as in the old work. Its points of dissimilarity are: 1, It contains much matter furnished directly by those contributors to the German work who have consented to condense their articles to the prescribed limit; 2, It contains hundreds of sketches of living persons derived in almost every instance from matter furnished by themselves; 3, The matter in proof has been sent to persons specially chosen for eminence in their respective departments; 4, A much more thorough bibliography is furnished and references are furnished in English for those who read only that language; 5, All articles based on German originals have been sent in proof to the writers when still living and many have made valuable corrections in the condensations. Charles Colebrook Sherman, the managing editor, is editor in biblical criticism and theology on "The new international encyclopedia," (Dodd, M. & Co.); Prof. George William Gilmore, who has prepared the bibliography, the great novelty of the encyclopedia, was formerly professor of biblical history and lecturer on religion in Bangor Theological Seminary.

In 1901 the Chicago Library Club issued a "List of serials in public libraries of Chicago and Evanston." Shortly after the founding of the Pennsylvania Library Club Mr. Thomas L. Montgomery suggested the publication of a similar list. The cost was assumed by the trustees of the Free Library of Philadelphia. Twenty-two leading libraries of the city and three in its vicinity are represented in the catalogue. The compilation was begun under Mr. Montgomery, but his appointment as State Librarian of Philadelphia took him from it. The trustees fortunately secured the services of John P. Lamberton, who has completed the work. Government publications have been excluded from the list. About 12,012 serials are on record.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 4, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

OUTSIDE VIEWS OF THE SUPREME COURT DECISIONS.

WE print elsewhere what may almost be called a symposium on the relations between publishers and the public, in the excellent statement from The Outlook, the review of the existing status from the London Spectator, and the letter of Colonel Olin, counsel for the American Publishers' Association, in which, for the purpose of correcting certain errors of fact in The Spectator's information, he gives an interesting and informing resumé of the recent legal history of the questions at issue.

It is gratifying to note that such periodicals as The Outlook and The Spectator appreciate so fully the broad question, speaking from the point of view of the public and in the interest of the public. What the public really needs, and incidentally what librarians should desire, is the best books at the lowest practicable prices. To accomplish this purpose the best publishing and distributing machinery is requisite, for in the long run the price of books, as of everything else, depends upon demand and supply; and the larger the proportion of successful books and the wider the sale, the less is the waste on books that do not pay a profit or actually make a loss, and the larger the possibilities of a reduction in the general price of books. This is the plain English and the pith of it all. To accomplish this the publishers believe that they must prevent underselling, which breaks up the machinery of the retail trade and ultimately curtails instead of broadens the sale of books. Questions of discount and trade method are solely incidental.

It may be, and of course will, be said again and again that publishers are in business to make money as well as to disseminate literature. This is true; but in the larger view of commerce and trade, self-interest and altruism find a common ground. As the publishing business cannot be a trust, because there will be continuing competition within the trade, and there never has been an attempt to limit individuality of publishing price, the real purpose of an association within the booktrade is to make that fair return for the publisher and retailer alike which will make a good book market and in the long run best serve the public.

Colonel Olin usefully points out again the strict limitation of the Supreme Court decisions. The Supreme Court has not passed upon the question of contracts between publishers and booksellers, but has decided simply that price protection cannot be made part of the copyright notice and that contracts cannot be implied into transactions under the circumstances of the Scribner case. It has not decided in any sense against freedom of contract as between publisher and retailer, and in our judgment is unlikely so to decide.

REFERRING to the present depression of the English booktrade the London Nation declares that "there is scarcely a doubt that the present overproduction of inferior work is the main cause of the depression in the booktrade. There never was a time when more worthless books were placed upon the market or when works of real value ran a greater risk of being swamped by the deluge of rubbish that pours from the press." Timely words, these, which might profitably be taken to heart also by the publishing trade in this country. Standing by the stream of books that rushes by unceasingly from January to December, and noting as we are obliged to do the enormous amount of superfluous printed matter that rushes by, it is often a matter of wonder that a good book lives even as long as it does. It were indeed in the interest of all concerned in the dissemination of good literature that the publication of books that are brought out chiefly to gratify the vanity of their authors to see themselves in print should be made more impossible each year. Then only will the books of real merit have a fighting chance to live.

OUTSIDE VIEWS OF THE MACY DECISIONS.

THE LONDON SPECTATOR.

THE London Spectator in its issue of June 6, commenting on the misleading reports furnished from this country to the London Times, says:

"... For ourselves, we do not see how under the common law of England such a judgment would be justified. If shipping companies can agree under certain conditions to fix rates, it would appear to be competent for publishers and booksellers to do the same. The agreement between the booksellers and the other signatories of a net book agreement is a personal contract with consideration attached. The limitation as to price does not attach to the book, but to its sale by a specific person. Once the book leaves his hand the agreement terminates. If a subscriber to the agreement violated its provisions, he would, in our opinion, be liable for a breach of contract; and if a publisher refused thereafter to supply him with books, it is at least extremely doubtful whether any case of boycott could be set up. We grant that the question is full of difficulties, but in the absence of any such statutes as governed the American decision, we should be inclined to think that the publishers had the stronger arguments in their favor. The matter, however, is less one of law than of public policy. This was recognized half a century ago when the booksellers and publishers fell out over this very point. The matter was referred to Lord Campbell as an informal arbitrator, and he sat in the library of Stratheden House with Grote and Milman as assessors. He found for the booksellers, but the fact that the victors in after years changed their views and entered into an alliance with the publishers shows that it is all much more a matter of policy than of legal rights. Books are a necessity for our national well-being. How can they be sold with equal advantage to the producer, retailer and consumer? There are those who urge—and with some show of reason—that books should be in the same position as most other commodities. They should be sold at any price at which the retailer thinks he can get a profitable market. It is possible that in time this state of things may come about; but we shall have first to see many changes in the methods of book-selling. If books are to be sold on the same terms as soap and candles, they must be sold in the same way. Bookshops would have to be centupled, and booksellers would have to adopt the selling methods of the ordinary grocer or haberdasher. They would become vast emporia, and the small man would disappear. All this may come about in time, but for the present there is a very great deal to be said for the net book agreement. It prevents ruinous competition among retailers. It prevents the standard of taste in format from being lowered, for the publisher is able to fix a price in accordance with his views on the matter. A book is not like a piece of soap. In soap all that we ask is that certain qualities be present, and these qualities being the essence of the article, can only be absent in a fake. But a good book may be presented with hideous binding, paper and type, and yet remain the identical book. If there were no net agreement, there would be a wild rush to cheapness and shoddiness, for the publisher would have to cater for firms who had cut down the price till their profit was infinitesimal, and a similar reduction in terms would be exacted from him. Finally there is the question of the author. Literary property does not last long, and he has to reap his gains in a short season. Since books are not articles of universal use and necessity, a price must be fixed which will give him fair remuneration. We should gladly see books cheaper; we believe that it would often be far more profitable both for author and publisher to look for small gains over a large area than large gains over a small; but obviously there must be a point where cheapness ceases to be profitable, and the point would be soon passed if every book vendor were engaged in cutting prices. Indeed, we find other trades recognizing to-day the wisdom of fixing some kind of standard. In the case of many 'proprietary articles' in the drapery trade, for example, the manufacturer sells to the retailer on condition that the article shall not be sold below a certain price. Such articles are, in our opinion, a closer parallel to books than articles of universal consumption like soap or oil. On mere grounds of public policy, we think the present arrangement better than the unregulated market which, apparently, will now be the rule in the United States.

"To sum up, we hold that it is wise to maintain wherever possible the principles of freedom and free contract; and, on the whole, the side of freedom seems to be that of letting the owners of copyright books settle the price at which their books are to be sold. If we do not allow them this liberty, we are in fact, if not in name, taking away with one hand the property which by the law of copyright we are giving with the other hand. In the end the question is a question of the proprietary rights conferred by law on the author."

STATEMENT BY S. H. OLIN AS TO THE BEARING OF THE DECISIONS.

Referring to the erroneous statements concerning the Supreme Court decisions upon which The Spectator bases its remarks, the following letter from the legal representative of the American Publishers' Association may be of interest to readers here as well as abroad:

NEW YORK, June 18, 1908.

To the Editor of The Spectator.

SIR: Your article of June 6th, entitled "Publishers, Booksellers and the Law," is evidently based upon misinformation as to a recent decision of the United States Supreme Court. I infer that the telegraphic summary sent to English papers has been unusually inaccurate.

Litigation between the firm of Macy & Company and different publishers has continued for several years, and any brief account of it can be intelligible only to those who understand our dual system of jurisprudence—State courts administering state law, including state anti-monopoly acts, and Federal courts enforcing the laws of the United States and among them the copyright acts and the Federal anti-monopoly statute.

Certain publishers formed the American Publishers' Association and agreed that each of them would sell his books only to dealers who would agree to maintain for one year the net retail price fixed by the publisher.

Macy & Company, refusing to buy books subject to these restrictions, brought suit in a New York State court to restrain the publishers from acting under their agreement, as being in restraint of trade and in violation of the New York anti-monopoly act.

The Court of Appeals, the highest court of the State, held that the acts of the publishers were not illegal so far as they related to copyrighted books, but a judgment was entered allowing Macy & Company to prove before a referee such damages as they had sustained by being deprived of uncopyrighted books.

A suit was begun in a United States Circuit Court in New York by Charles Scribner's Sons against Macy & Company, under the copyright acts, to enjoin, as an infringement of copyright, the selling at retail, at less than "net" prices, books which the Scribners had sold to wholesale dealers on condition that net prices should be maintained.

This suit was decided against the plaintiffs upon the facts, the court holding that it was not proved that the defendants were selling books affected by the conditional sale. This finding was confirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals and by the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court expressed no opinion upon the legal questions involved and the judgment did nothing toward settling the law.

The Bobbs-Merrill Company, publishers, of Indiana, brought suit in a United States Circuit Court in New York. The plaintiff had sold books to wholesale dealers without any restriction or condition whatever. Each book, however, contained a notice that it was not to be sold for less than a dollar, and the Bobbs-Merrill Company contended that, by this notice, the book, although sold by them, was kept within the copyright monopoly, and that the sale of it by any one for less than a dollar was an infringement of copyright.

The Circuit Court, the Circuit Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court rejected this claim—the Supreme Court carefully confining its decision to the exact facts in the case.

Plainly, it has not been held that "the publisher could not dictate the price at which books should be sold." It has been held that they cannot do this by a mere notice printed in the books, but the Supreme Court has not passed upon the effect of a restricted sale or of an agreement between the publisher and his vendees.

Neither the Supreme Court nor the Circuit Court of Appeals has held that the American Publishers' Association or the American Booksellers' Association was illegal or in restraint of trade. Such a defense was set up in the Scribner case, but was stricken out by the court as impertinent.

Thereafter the same defense was interposed in the Bobbs-Merrill suit, but the plaintiff did not move to strike it out, but, on the contrary, admitted the facts as alleged by Macy & Company. Neither association was party to the suit, and the trial judge, upon the facts admitted, held the defense established. The Circuit Court of Appeals, however, refused to hear the question argued, saying that the defense was obviously irrelevant.

There is no decision in any of our courts which obliges a publisher to supply his copyrighted books except on his own terms.

The Supreme Court holds that the "sole liberty of vending" a copyrighted book cannot be retained by a mere notice printed in the book, when the book is sold by an unrestricted sale, but very few publishers are either surprised or disappointed that the extreme claim advanced by the Bobbs-Merrill Company has not been sustained.

The actual decisions of the courts accord with the views expressed by you. It is a pity that the cabled news should have been so misleading.

Very truly yours,

STEPHEN H. OLIN.

THE OUTLOOK.

The Outlook for June 20 in an eminently fair review of the legal struggle between the booktrade and undersellers closes its comments on the recent decisions of the Supreme Court in the cases against Macy & Co. as follows:

"... In neither of these decisions does the Court pass upon the principle of the right of individual contract between publisher and dealer; it simply asserts that in the two cases before it the alleged contracts were really not contracts at all. It will thus be seen that these various court decisions do not mean that retail dealers have an inherent and inalienable right to sell books with all sorts of rebates and discounts, of which rights they cannot be deprived by any sort of legal steps on the part of the publishers. Nor do they mean that the publishers of the country can form a combination, even if it is a defensive one, by which a persistent price-cutter can be deprived of all the books controlled by this combination. They do mean, apparently, however, that a publisher has a right to state the terms upon which he will do business with a retailer, and may refuse to do business with the retailer if he does not accept the terms, or violates an individual contract involved in the terms. The Outlook thoroughly believes in the individual bookstore, but it also recognizes the fact that the book department of a great merchandizing firm may become an individual bookstore if it is conducted upon proper lines. This requires some knowledge of literature in general, a personal interest in books, not as mere commodities, but as works of art, and a desire to supply the community with the very best goods—principles which apply equally to the sale of watches, bicycles, gloves or groceries. Cheapness of price does not always mean economy to the purchaser, and the bookbuyers and booklovers of the country ought to welcome any legal and honest endeavor of the publishers to promote just and equal prices and facilities in every community for the display and sale of the best books, and not merely the exploitation of the 'best sellers.'"

PRICES TO JOBBERS AND RETAILERS.

"A JOBBER is a jobber, no matter how small he is, and a retailer is a retailer, no matter how large he is.' That is the position taken by John T. Drysdale, manager of the post-card department of the Western News Company, as expressed at the American post-card manufacturers' meeting in Chicago, and in the failure to recognize the justice of this position," says The Novelty News in commenting on this statement, "lies much of the price-demoralization which is now a menace to the post-card business. Time and again legitimate jobbers in post-cards buy large editions from manufacturers, only to discover a few days later that retailers have been visited by the same salesmen who sold them large bills of exactly the same cards, at exactly the same prices. The manufacturer who sells to a jobber and then to a department store, for instance, quoting practically the same prices to the two, cannot justify himself by the excuse that the department store buys even a larger quantity than the jobber, because the retailer who buys at a jobbing trade price is sure to sell at a price so low as to destroy the market, not only for his own goods but for all competing cards in that community."

INSTITUT INTERNATIONAL DE BIBLIOGRAPHIE ET DE DOCUMENTATION.

THE International Conference of Bibliography and Records will be held at Brussels on July 10 and 11. Questions on the organization of bibliographical works and on the unification of methods and co-operation in the domain of bibliography are occupying the thoughts of all countries and are brought to the front in almost all international conventions. Many great works are already in preparation. It is planned that this conference should be preparatory and especially devoted to methods. The results are to be formulated for a great International Congress, which is to be held in 1910 simultaneously with the International Congress of Libraries and Archives now being organized for that date. The conference of July 10 and 11 is to bring together the representatives of associations, institutes, libraries and publication bureaus of all countries devoted to all the special sciences, especially representatives of organizations of international character. Preliminary reports have been prepared on all questions to be considered and will be distributed before the conference. Choice of languages for these reports has been optional.

IN HONOR OF THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH.

MANY prominent people attended the dedication of the Thomas Bailey Aldrich Memorial at Portsmouth, N. H., on June 30. The exercises at Music Hall were presided over by the Hon. Wallace Hackett, Mayor of Portsmouth and president of the Thomas Bailey Aldrich Memorial Association. The speakers included Governor Guild of Massachusetts, Hamilton Wright Mabie, Congressman Charles E. Littlefield, Thomas Wentworth Higginson, Richard Watson Gilder, William Dean Howells, Thomas Nelson Page, Samuel S. Clemens and Robert Bridges. "The Singing Heart," an original poem dedicated to the memory of Mr. Aldrich, was read by its author, Robert Bridges, New York.

The invited guests afterwards visited the old Nutter House, which has been completely restored, following the descriptions in "The Story of a Bad Boy." Near it has been erected a fireproof building, in which are deposited Aldrich's collection of first editions, valuable manuscripts, autographs, etc., given by Mrs. Aldrich and her son.

The biography of Aldrich, by Ferris Greenslet, will be published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. in October.

THE Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge first appeared in three volumes, November, 1882, to March, 1884. In November, 1886, a revised edition was issued and at the same time "The Encyclopedia of Living Divines and Christian Workers of All Denominations in Europe and America," a supplement to the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia, edited by Dr. Schaff and Dr. Samuel Macauley Jackson, now the chief editor of the new encyclopedia. In 1891, the third edition of the original encyclopedia was issued, and with it was incorporated the "Encyclopedia of Living Divines" as a fourth volume, with an appendix bringing the information down to 1890.

The new encyclopedia is really the old work revised, enlarged and reconstructed. It has many points of identity with the old work, but has also the following important points of dissimilarity: (1) It contains much matter furnished directly by the contributors to the German work, who have themselves condensed their articles and brought them within the prescribed limit; (2) it contains hundreds of sketches of living persons derived in almost every instance from matter furnished by themselves; (3) the matter in proof has been sent to persons specially chosen for eminence in their respective departments; (4) a much more thorough bibliography is furnished; (5) all articles based on German originals have been sent in proof to the writers of the original German articles when still living and the condensation and translations have been approved by them.

The associate editors and department editors have sought to do their work with conscientious fidelity, and the Funk & Wagnalls Co. have again provided a great work of reference for which the English-speaking world should give them hearty support. It is no mean distinction to have one's imprint on "The Standard Dictionary," "The Jewish Encyclopedia," and the "New Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge."

NEW YORK NEWSDEALERS CANNOT TRANSFER PERMITS.

THE New York Board of Aldermen adopted on June 30 without dissent the ordinance forbidding holders of news, fruit and bootblack stands within the stoop lines and under the elevated stations to sell the permits which allow them to do business at those stands.

The ordinance was introduced by Alderman Dowling, who repeated at the hearing on June 30 that there are certain individuals in New York City who have made a practice of getting stand permits free and selling them. The ordinance provides a penalty of $50 for every offence, and that a man who has once transferred a license shall be barred from holding another. The stand holders opposed the ordinance on the ground that it would prevent them from selling their good will on retiring from business.

ANOTHER SWINDLER BUSY.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: The paragraph headed "A Swindler Abroad," in your issue of June 20, attracted our attention because our library was visited by a very clever swindler on May 29 who "borrowed" fifteen dollars. He called himself Mr. Perry, and said that he had just been given charge of the Department of Manuscripts in the Boston Public Library.

OBITUARY NOTES.

SIR EDWARD BALDWIN MALET, a frequent contributor to the periodical and daily press on subjects of political and general interest, and the author of "Shifting Scenes," a volume of personal recollections, died in London June 30. He was born at the Hague in October, 1837.

"ALLEN RAINE," (Mrs. Beynon Puddicombe,) a novelist of whose books nearly 2,000,000 copies are said to have been sold in Great Britain, within ten years, died on June 22 in London. Mrs. Puddicombe was born in Newcastle Emlyn, Wales, and was the daughter of Benjamin Evans, a solicitor. Her novels began to appear under the pen-name of "Allen Raine" in 1897. She wrote "A Welsh Singer," "Torn Sails," "By Berwen Banks," "Garthowen," "A Welsh Witch," "On the Wings of the Wind," "Hearts of Wales," and "Queen of the Rushes," most of which were brought out here by D. Appleton & Co.

GEORGE HENRY DANIELS, for many years passenger agent of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, well known to travelling men all over the country, died at Lake Placid, N. Y., July 1. "Uncle George" Daniels was born in Hampshire, Ill., December 1, 1842. At the age of fifteen he began his railroad career, to which he devoted the better part of his life. Mr. Daniels originated the names "The Four-Track System" and "The Empire State Express," and he established and edited The Four-Track News, which was later merged into Travel. He was instrumental in inducing the government to depict the Empire State Express on one of the Pan-American stamps.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD has finished her Canadian visit and is about to sail from Quebec for England.

READERS of "The Cruise of the Cachalot" no doubt will be interested to see the writer's new book, "The Confessions of a Tradesman." It appears that when its author, Frank T. Bullen, was a government clerk, earning about $10 a week, his wife received a legacy of $1000, and they purchased a little shop in Peckham, "a picture frame and general fancy emporium." Mr. Bullen retained his clerkship, but the struggle to support the family was, nevertheless, a desperate one. It is described in these "Confessions." Not until he discovered his literary aptitude and wrote "The Cruise of the Cachalot" were his miseries ended.

LORD CURZON on July 1 unveiled the medallion of "John Oliver Hobbes," (Mrs. Craigie,) which has been placed in the library of University College, London, where Mrs. Craigie was a student. The medallion, which was executed by Alfred Drury, is of bronze, framed in dark wood. On the top corners are figures representing literature and comedy. A replica of the medallion will be sent to this country.

THERE has been much speculation as to the authorship of that clever detective story,

"The Four-Pools Mystery," published anonymously last March, and opinion has seemed to concur that internal evidence proved it the work of a Southerner, though Anna Katharine Green has been credited with it more than once. Now it is told, on the authority of the publishers, that the author of what the Philadelphia Public Ledger declares the "most thrilling detective tale" published in recent years, is Miss Jean Webster, who set thousands to laughing over her first book, "When Patty Went to College."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE report that the London Times has been sold to Lord Northcliffe, (formerly Sir Alfred Harmsworth,) the principal proprietor of the London Daily Mail, is denied. The Times is authority for the further statement that the directors of the company formed in March will take over the control of the paper July 4.

The Forum, which was started in 1886 as a monthly magazine, but which during the last six years has been issued as a quarterly, has reverted to its former custom of monthly publication, beginning with the July number. This is to give the editors more space for the publication of special articles on topics of timeliness and importance in the world of thought. It seems also the intention of the editors to give the magazine a lighter touch, as the forthcoming number will contain the first instalment of a serial story by Joseph Conrad, which will be followed on its completion by other serials and short stories.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—The Brown Book Company, which has lately taken over the Inland Book Store, is now fully organized, and has elected the following officers: Edwin L. Brown, Jr., president; Owen Gudger, secretary; James G. Stikeleather, treasurer. The directors of the company are Edwin L. Brown, Jr., Hugh Brown, Owen Gudger, James G. Stikeleather and T. J. Harkins. Edwin L. Brown, Jr., who will be in charge of the business, is well known through his connection with the Hackney & Moale bookstore, of which he was the manager for a number of years.

BALTIMORE, MD.—The Doxey Book Shop Company is reported to be in the hands of a receiver.

BERRYVILLE, VA.—The Ricamore Bookstore has taken a larger store next to the post-office.

DES MOINES, IA.—H. Jesse Miller has removed his bookstore to the corner—two doors east of his present location.

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, MO.—E. T. Ashby has succeeded to the book business of F. M. Applegate.

NEW YORK CITY.—At the first meeting of the creditors of Robert Grier Cooke, Inc., on June 25, Francis H. Griffin, of 82 Beaver Street, was appointed trustee.

PERSONAL NOTES.

H. J. BERGER, who for two years past has been editor of Geyer's Stationer, and who for five years previously was editor of The American Stationer, has assumed the editorship of The National Stationer. Mr. Berger will endeavor to make The National Stationer deserve the fine support it has been promised.

L. KNIGHT, formerly manager of the American branch of Ward, Lock & Co., who has been for some time in Australia and England, has returned to New York City. His address for the present will be in care of Rohde & Haskins, 16 Cortlandt Street, New York City. Mr. Knight will shortly announce his future plans.

CHARLES F. PAGE, for years associated with his brothers in the publishing firm of L. C. Page & Company, has resigned his position as advertising manager to go on the business staff of the Boston Herald. Besides general publicity work for the Herald, Mr. Page will have charge of the book pages, and will represent the magazine and book publishers for the Herald.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

DODD, MEAD & Co., New York, have brought out an interesting list of books which is intended to answer the question "What Shall I Read this Summer?" The list includes fiction, travel books, nature books, essays, biography and a number of miscellaneous books. Many of the titles are annotated. (56 p. 32°.)

THE OFFICE OF THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has just brought out the second main volume of the "American Catalog" series of the twentieth century, forming the seventh since the original volume of books in print in 1876. The volume as finally planned covers only the three years 1905, 1906 and 1907 instead of a five-year or ten-year period as originally outlined. The present limit was adopted because the current bibliographical matter has grown to such proportions that a longer period would necessitate either an unmanageably bulky volume or the division of the catalogue into two volumes, to which there are many valid objections. Then, too, there would be the inevitable delay in putting into the hands of the bookseller and librarian this much-needed information in available shape. As it is, the present volume and its predecessor cover the period from January 1, 1900, to January 1, 1908, and thus provide a fairly complete index, in two alphabets, for the past eight years—a period during which practically all books now in active demand have either been first published or have been reissued. Prefixed to the volume is a Directory of Publishers issuing books from January 1, 1905, to December 31, 1907. (65+1164 p. 8°, half morocco, $7.50.) The supplementary volume, containing the full title record material appearing in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY during 1905-1907, a separate alphabet for each year, is also just ready, bound uniform with the above volume in half morocco at $6.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

RICHARD BADGER, Boston, has published an interesting little book of charades entitled "Guesswork," by Emily Shaw Forman.

THE HENRY ALTEMUS COMPANY has just brought out a series of readable talks on "Work and Habits," by Senator Beveridge.

THOMAS WHITAKER has brought out "The New Anecdote Book," by Alfred H. Miles, a volume similar to the author's "One Thousand and One Anecdotes," for the use of platform speakers of all classes.

THE AMERICAN GYMNASIA COMPANY, Boston, Mass., is about to publish a volume entitled "American Playgrounds, their Construction, Equipment, Maintenance and Utility," edited by E. B. Mero, with 100 illustrations from photographs, drawings and plans.

THE DODGE PUBLISHING CO. will publish on July 20 a volume by Walter Cottingham, entitled "Business Success," which embraces a life's experience in business and treats of most all the principles covered by Emerson in his essays. They also announce a second edition of "The Widow," (to say nothing of the man,) by Helen Rowland, which first appeared on June 10.

CASSELL & Co. announce a new novel by Mrs. Campbell Craig, entitled "By Their Fruits," which will appear early next month. During September they will publish the fifth volume of their "Cyclopædia of Mechanics," which will bring the work up to date. "Moore's Almanac" for 1909, which will be the 212th annual issue, will also appear in September. Lett's diaries are now handled in this country exclusively by Cassell.

IN "The Shakespeare Problem Restated," the author, G. G. Greenwood, has had for his object the presentation of the arguments for the negative case—the proposition that the Stratford player was not the real Shakespeare. He is convinced that the time has come for such a restatement to be made in the light of modern criticism and research. No attempt is made to uphold the Baconian or any other theory of authorship, or to arrive at any positive solution of the problem. The book has just been brought out by John Lane Company.

CUPPLES & LEON will bring out on the 15th inst. "The Evening Telegram Cook Book," a collection of the recipes from the New York Evening Telegram; the following additions to their new copyright fiction by world-famous authors: "The Gates of Life," by Bram Stoker, and "The Soul of Cræsus," by G. Villiers-Stuart; also, a new book by Buffalo Bill, (Colonel W. F. Cody,) entitled "True Tales of the Plains," containing descriptions of Custer's last fight, the Pony Express, and vivid descriptions of the author's numerous encounters with the Indians.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have brought out twelve sets of four cards each of picture post-cards, in colors, by Clarence Underwood, Ethel F. and Anna W. Betts, Anita Le Roy and others. This is the first time that the work of these celebrated and popular artists has ever appeared in post-card form. The designs have been carefully and artistically reproduced and will undoubtedly become favorites at once. They call our attention to the fact that it is not their intention, as our item in last week's issue made them say, to publish all of their juvenile books before August, but only their Comic Juveniles—which is a totally different matter. Also, the title of Beatrice Harraden's new novel is "Interplay," not "Outerplay."

THE AMERICAN BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY have just brought out a work in three parts by James L. Rand, entitled "Systematic Supplementary Bible Studies." The first part, intended for the Primary Department, is an arrangement of questions and answers pertaining to important religious facts, such as the being of God, the religion and contents of the Bible, etc. It also suggests the memorizing of certain portions, such as the Twenty-third Psalm and the Ten Commandments. Part second, prepared for the Junior Department, deals more with questions of personal religion and the revelation of God in Christ. It also takes up the history, very briefly, and the geography of the Bible lands. The third part gives, for the Intermediate and Senior Departments, in outline form, the principal facts in the life of Jesus, the plan of redemption, and an epitome of church and Bible history.

REILLY & BRITTON will have on exhibition at the Palmer House, Chicago, from July 6 to 18, a complete sample line of their publications. After July 15 their full line will be shown at their New York headquarters with Hurst & Co., at 395 Broadway. Among their new books that promise to find favor with buyers this fall are: "Dorothy and the Wizard in Oz," by L. Frank Baum—the 1908 "Oz" book—with many full-colored and black-and-white illustrations by John R. Neill; Children's Stories That Never Grow Old Series, twenty-four standard juvenile titles, printed from new large type plates and illustrated in full color by John R. Neill; a second edition of "The Bride's Cook Book," recipes proportioned for two, with instructions for enlarging, with full information on all subjects pertaining to the dining-room and kitchen, expressly arranged to serve the needs of the girl bride; "Forget-Me-Nots," an every-day book for everybody in which to make all kinds of memoranda, illustrated on every page in two colors; "When Good Fellows Get Together," a selection of sentiments expressive of good-fellowship, optimism, uplift and cheerfulness, printed in two colors on fine paper; "Toasts You Ought to Know," a comprehensive selection of toasts, conveniently arranged on unique lines, by Janet Madison; "Twentieth Century Toasts," an attractive collection of old and new toasts, bound in enamelled paper, with decorations on every page; and "Memorable American Speeches," edited by John Vance Cheney, a selection of the epoch-making speeches of American orators.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 7 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplaced advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

THE CLIQUE

(ESTABLISHED 1890)

The Recognized Organ of the Second-Hand Book Trade

THE CLIQUE is read by every bookseller who deals in old books in Great Britain, and by many in the United States and on the Continent.

THE CLIQUE advertises for about 4000 books every week; books which are wanted by its Members, and for which they are willing to pay a fair price.

THE CLIQUE is issued to booksellers only, its motto being "The Trade for THE TRADE." Booksellers can therefore report to our advertisers in confidence that they will not be "cut" by amateur dealers, who are not obliged to make their living by selling books.

THE CLIQUE is the best medium for all advertisements which appeal to booksellers, and its rates are lower than those of any tradepaper in the world.

SUBSCRIPTION 6s 6d ($1.50) per annum, post free; but as all subscriptions terminate in December subscribers may deduct 1½d (three half-pence) for each week of the year that has passed.
